

it must be the sincere desire of every one interested in the well-being of the people of India that the deliberations at the forthcoming Round Table Conference in London fixed for the 20th October next will bear fruitful results and ultimately result in a constitution conducive to the peace and progress of India.

The honoured presence in our midst at the commencement of this session of Mr. Cater, the worthy representative in the Madras States of the august Paramount Power has given us no small pleasure, and, on behalf of the Members of the Cochin Legislative Council, I wish to convey to Mr. Cater our deep gratitude for his condescension to be present to-day and his abiding interest in our Council Proceedings.

With these few remarks, I declare this session open for business.
